Pure Moments is a book of just that. Moments in life that I don't want to forget or experiences that God spoke to me through over the years. Sometimes, I would sense the Holy Spirit telling me to write in the middle of the night. The words would come and I knew it wasn't me. However, it usually had to do with something I was going through at the time; things like motherhood, parenting, grieving, and marriage. These words would just flow onto the paper. I pray these poems remind us of how special moments can be. Whether it is in good times or bad, God will always be there for us. They may be words you want to pass on or express; however, didn't know how. Words that will encourage you in your journey. It's those moments in life that are precious. We just need to take the time to notice and capture them. God will bring us through, bless us with beauty, give us wisdom, or comfort us when we need it. For the joyful moments that come that we want to remember or the times when you need to know someone else felt that way too. May these poems bless you and speak to your heart as they did mine. God bless you.

These tears I cry, is a book with a very powerful message. It is a book of poetry and stories about the upcoming of my life, as well as the heartbreak that we face in the world today. These poems and stories are very intense, deep, emotional and inspiring. I've been through so much in my life that my life has become an inspiration to me, being that I had to face the world alone. Dealing with trauma, pain, shame as well as blame for the pain and suffering that I've endured in my life, fear, tears, rape, molestation, struggling with an eating disorder and near death experience. Due to the fact that I had taken my life's pain out on myself, not realizing that I wasn't to blame, but there were moments when I couldn't bare the pain. And those are some of the reasons for the shame that I wish I could change, because if I had the wisdom that I have today, I would have done things in my life a different way. For life has been a horrific struggle and emotional battle, but my faith is what got me here today, and the gift has been more than rewarding, it has given me courage and strength to not only tell my story, but to help save and change lives, through these heartfelt inspiring poems that can make all the difference in our world, in our lives. Changing our outlook on the way we see the world today, by giving us hope, belief and faith. Expressing a very powerful message of hate, racism, criticism, violence, justice and unforgettable tragedy." And people who fought with love, courage and strength, but lost their lives due to tragedy and violence of the world today. We owe it to them as well as to ourselves to make a better way. So please take time to read what just might change your life and make a difference.

Thoughts from the Bottom The Little Booktique Hub Primo Levi (1919-1987) was an Italian chemist, writer, and Holocaust survivor who used a combination of testimony, essays, and creative writing to explore crucial themes related to the Shoah. His voice is among the most important to emerge from this dark chapter in human history. In Primo Levi and the Identity of a Survivor, Nancy Harrowitz examines the complex role that Levi's Jewish identity played in his choices of how to portray his survival, as well as in his exposition of topics such as bystander complicity. Her analysis uncovers a survivor's shame that deeply influenced the personas he created to recount his experiences. Exploring a range of Levi's works, including Survival at Auschwitz and lesser-known works of fiction and poetry, she illustrates key issues within his development as a writer. At the heart of Levi's discourse, Harrowitz argues, lies a complex interplay of narrative modes that reveals his brilliance as a theorist of testimony. It's More Than You Think Lulu.com

"Hilarious!" "Simply amazing." "A beautiful story." "I didn't want it to end!" A fictional tale inspired by "the most viral human interest story on record," which had over 4 billion traditional media impressions, according to PR experts in late 2015. Fasten your seat belts for a journey filled with humor and adventure. Bachelor & newscaster Pete McCarney buys two plane tickets for a trip around the world with his girlfriend, but they split up shortly before the trip, and he can't get a refund. In a gutsy last minute move, Pete goes on social media asking for women with his girlfriend's exact name to apply to join him on the trip. Twenty-one women apply, and the ensuing interview process is both awkward and hilarious. When he finally chooses a feisty, headstrong, recently-divorced lawyer, he has no idea what to expect from their world wide adventures - and neither does Allie James. She has pretty much sworn off men since her divorce. Will either of them get the vacation they were so desperately hoping for? The Parts of the Whole Rising

Selected by Sally Keith as a winner of the 2020 National Poetry Series, this debut collection is a ruminative catalogue of overgrowth and the places that haunt us. With Devon Walker-Figueroa as our Virgil, we begin in the collection's eponymous town of Philomath, Oregon. We drift through the general store, into the Nazarene Church, past people plucking at the brambles of a place that won't let them go. We move beyond the town into fields and farmland—and further still, along highways, into a cursed Californian town, a museum in Florence. We wander with a kind of animal logic, like a beast with "a mind to get loose / from a valley following / towards foul," through the tense, overlapping space between movement and stillness. An explorer at the edge of the sublime, Walker-Figueroa writes in quiet awe of nature, of memory, and of a beauty that is "merely existence carrying on and carrying on." In her wanderings, she guides readers toward a kind of witness that doesn't flinch from the bleak or bizarre: A vineyard engulfed in flames is reclaimed by the fields. A sow smothers its young, then bears more. A neighbor chews locusts in his yard. For in Philomath, it is the poet's (sometimes reluctant) obligation "to keep an eye / on what is left" of the people and places that have impacted us. And there is always something left, whether it is the smell of burnt grapes, a twelfth-century bronze, or even a lock of hair.

I'm Rising: Determined. Confident. Powerful. Good Year Books

If you were to tell a ten year old Jiyaan that by the ripe old age of thirteen he would be writing a Preface to his to-be-published collection of poems, he would have laughed out loud (also, he would have first asked you what preface meant). Alas, a series of unconnected events lead me to discover my love for all things poetry, which lead to this book getting its form. As the title tells you, the poems contained in this book don't follow any singular theme or module, on the contrary, they stay here just in the way they came to me. Jumping genres, themes and forms, together forming a tapestry of ideas in my mind. There are poems about nationalism and patriotism, poems about satire, optimistic verses and thoughts that came together whilst I was observing the world around me. A lot of these came together while I was in lockdown last year, with nothing much to do but pour my thoughts on paper. Some of these might make you laugh, some ponder and some amaze, but they will all help you get a glimpse of the way I see the world around me. Together, they're the little lake my thoughts have become, with each bringing its own vibrant hues and shades. I hope this mosaic gives you as much joy as it gave me while writing it.
